Germantown, Wednesday, July 24.
Fisherville, Thursday, July 25.
Somerville, Saturday, July 27.

At which appointments W. J. Smith and F. S. Richards are respectfully invited to be present, and divide time. General P. B. Glenn will attend the most of the above appointments, and address the people upon the important issues of the hour.

The Houveds or National Guards of Hungary are to be reorganized.

There has not been a revolution in Mexico for six days.

The receipts from customs for the week ending July 13, were $2,769,558.

The mission ship John Williams has been lost at South Sea Island.

A train of Mormons, who have renounced the faith, arrived at Julesburg on the 18th, on their way to the States.

Perfirio Diaz has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the united armies of the Republic of Mexico.

The pretty waiter girls of New York are on a strike. They want more wages and are going to organize a "Union."

The President pocketed the bill authorizing negroes to sit as jurors and hold office in the District of Columbia.

The Astor House, New York, entered, Saturday, its thirty-first year under the management of Mr. Stetson.

John Stuart Mill has written a letter to a gentleman in Topeka, declaring his hearty sympathy with the women suffrage movement.

A couple of chivalrous actors, J. W. Fox and F. B. Lytle, quarreled in Des Moines, Iowa, on Wednesday of last week, and made arrangements for a duel. At the appointed hour Lytle, the challenger, failed to appear.

In the Italian Parliament, on the 10th, Ratazzi said the present time was inopportune for granting unrestricted liberty to the church. It would be granted when the church recognized the full liberty of the state.

We learn that the corn crop of Middle Alabama is magnificent. The entire country looks like a land of promise, and there is no doubt that the corn crop will be the finest ever raised in Alabama.

The Houston Telegraph of the 17th says: The corn crop of the State (Province) of Texas, from the information we are daily receiving, will be an immense one. Bad news for grain raisers and dealers, North, who have been in the habit of feeding the South.

The Sentinel on the Border, a sprightly, piquant Democratic paper, edited by A. S. Kieroff, has been transfered from Evansville, Indiana, to Nile, Michigan, the soil being considered more fresh and fertile than the well worked field lately ploughed.

The Aberdeen (Miss.) Examiner contains a challenge to the world from a citizen of that town to play a match game of billiards—the game to be played in that city, to be the American or four ball game, and for any amount. Parties at a distance disposed to entertain the proposition, can obtain all desired information, and arrange preliminaries, by addressing Mr. J. M. Brassfield, Aberdeen, Mississippi.

On the 20th, at Cairo, Illinois, the engine W. P. Halliday, used on the dirt train of Fox, Howard & Co., exploded, instantly killing J. W. Hayward, chief engineer, and mortally wounding John Wilson, fireman. Mr. Wilson's leg and arm are broken and he is terribly scalded all over. He was formerly from Hannibal, Missouri. Such was the force of the explosion, the unfortunate men were blown nearly one hundred yards.

A serious riot among the firemen took place at Philadelphia on the 16th. A demonstration was made by the Moyamensing Hose Company on the Hope Engine House. Approaching from different directions in two columns, one hundred strong each, the attacking party, when within close pistol shot of the building, received a perfect fusilade, and were compelled to retire, bearing off a number seriously wounded, although none were killed on the spot.

The negro Bill Brooks, we learn from the Canton (Mississippi) Citizen, who was convicted of murder in the first degree, last week, was executed near that place yesterday. The culprit reached the scaffold about twelve o'clock, attended by the sheriff, jailor and Rev. Father Murtagh, who administered to him the rites of the Church. He was asked if he killed the woman. He replied: "Yes, thank God; I killed her for revenge, thank God; I was leading a sinful life, and killing her will be the means of my salvation; I cannot go to heaven with a lie upon my lips." The execution was witnessed by about six hundred persons, five-sixths of whom were negroes.

We find the deaths of two printers and journalists announced—Charles Faxon, of Clarksville, Tennessee, father of Charles, Jr., Lem., and the late Henry, one of the most versatile and humerous writers of his day, and Henry C. Watson, of the Sacramento Union. Mr. Faxon was sixty-eight years old at the time of his death, and was greatly respected. His sons took after his tastes and are what people call "newspaper men," which, properly applied, probably may mean men who live by their brains, by which they make other men appear much larger and grander than they really are. Mr. Watson was formerly connected with the Philadelphia North American, and afterward the Evening Journal of the same city.

Since the decease of Justice James M. Wayne, of Georgia, the Supreme Court is constituted as follows: S. P. Chase, of Ohio, Chief Justice, appointed 1863; Samuel Nelson, New York, 1845; Robert C. Grier, Pennsylvania, 1846; Nathan Clifford, Maine, 1858; Noah M. Swayne, Ohio, 1862; Davis, of Illinois, 1862; Samuel F. Miller, Iowa, 1862; Stephen J. Field, California, 1863.

Mr. J. Parker, of Camberwell, England, has constructed a portable steam canoe to hold one person. The propeller is a jet of water one inch in area, forced by the direct action of steam, without any engine. Three miles an hour was obtained on the trial on the Surrey canal, against a stiff breeze, with only a little common firewood for fuel. With a good fire the speed is expected to come to between four and five mile an hour, through still water. This little boat is capable of a trip of a hundred miles with one sack of coke.

Maximilian left the children of Miramon well provided for in his will; he has urged his brother, the Emperor of Austria, to educate these children the same as if they were his own, remembering that they are the children of the man who went with him to the grave. Mejia, in his last request, left his child to Escobedo, that he might never forget the murder he could prevent but would not. It will be remembered that Mejia saved the life of Escobedo several times—twice by clemency and once by furnishing him horses and money to escape.

The Hartsville (Tennessee) Videtts, in speaking of the arrest in Texas of Newt. Guy, accused of robbing the pay train at Bristow's Station, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, on the 11th of October last, says that Newt. Guy was in Hartsville on the day after the train was robbed. He was at the house of a citizen, only a few miles from Hartsville, at nine o'clock in the morning. The train is said to have been robbed between midnight and three o'clock, and the distance to that place from Bristow's Station is sixty-six miles. If the train was robbed at that time, it is impossible that Guy could have been present.

The latest official accounts from Crete give terrible reports of the cruelties of the Turks, one of the Cretans having inflicted severe punishment on one of Omar Pacha's spies. The general retaliates by actually crucifying the Cretan priest, to satiate his revenge, and at the same time to cast odium upon the Christian religion, from which he apostacised. He next besieged the cavern in which the Greek women and children had taken refuge, and closing the cavern with stones, left them to die of starvation. This renegade is repeating in Crete the scenes of carnage which made him so infamous in Koordistan, Syria and Montenegro. He boasts that he will exterminate the Cretans. The Turkish government, staking its faith on the general, declines for the present to yield to the remonstrances of the foreign powers. It declares, however, that it will consult the Cretans' wishes in the event of the revolution not being quelled prior to July 24th. It is stated that the Cretans are more heroic than ever in their resistance, and there is no probability of the success of Omar Pacha.

MINISTER CAMPBELL'S NOTE.

A Defiance to the United States—Letter from a Member of Juarez's Cabinet.

From El Pajaro (Mexico) June 25.]

We had scarcely cast off the yoke of European intervention—thanks only to our own strength, our own courage, our own fidelity and our own republican pride—when called upon to repulse a new attempt at intervention on the part of the greatest power on this continent.

It is true that this latter attempt does not show in the same light as the attempt made by the French, for it is certain that it comes from a friendly sister nation, whose interest in the preservation of our political existence is very great.

However, though the attempt be skillfully cloaked in diplomatic formulas, and though we look upon it as growing out of a feeling of kindness, it is evident that it is the intention of the American authorities to force precepts upon our own Government in relation to its internal politics, and co-operate in the exercise of rights which are the sole property of the nation.

Our feelings in the matter ought to be readily excited, however insignificant the attack may seem, and however frivolous any pretext may be, for the influence of a party coming from the other side of the sea is as baneful to the independence of Mexico as the influence coming from the other side of the Bravo.

The terms in which is couched Mr. Campbell's note, dated April 16th, and addressed to the "Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic," are not in strict unison with the circumspect and moderate style originally adhered to by the framers of friendly diplomatic documents. They seem the more imperious and high sounding from the fact that the sentences comprised in the document can be regarded as constituting a warning uttered by a friendly nation.

If to the facts above stated be added the well known precedent of the note of the Austrian Minister Wydenbruck, bearing the same date, our view of the affair will not be proved incorrect.

In that note are to be found the following phrases, the significance of which is apparent: "We hesitate less (said the Austrian Minister to Mr. Seward) to have recourse to you, because we not only have the utmost confidence in the friendship of the American Government, but because your Government appears to have the right to ask Juarez to respect his prisoners of war, inasmuch as the greater part of the triumph of the Liberal party in Mexico is due to the moral support of the American Government."

We cannot deny that the people of the United States have expressed an enduring sympathy for our cause. We cannot but recognize the moral influence which such a sympathy has had upon the solution of the Mexican question. Still, it is proper not to forget that the great American nation, by sympathizing with the cause of liberty which our country was defending with such heroism, favored its own cause in favoring the independence of the white American continent. Besides, her assistance was confined to according Mexico the aid of her moral influence, and this was even less than might have been expected on the part of a nation that has proclaimed for its own interest and with so much fervor the inviolability of the Monroe doctrine.

Mr. Campbell says: "The Government of the United States has observed, with much satisfaction, the withdrawal of the French expeditionary force in Mexico, and the advance of the constitutional government. The satisfaction has been recently disturbed by the report it has received in regard to the severity practized on the prisoners of war taken by your armies at Zacatecas. Its fears, too, have been thereby excited that in the event of the capture of the Prince Maximilian and the forces under him, this severity might be repeated." Then follow "worse paragraphs," to which we refer the reader, that he may, like ourselves, grow indignant at their tenor. Certain it is that the tone of the letter is not such as one would expect to find in a communication addressed to a friendly Government; the style is far more adapted to an ill humored pedagogue chiding an erring pupil than to a diplomatist.

We cannot, however, omit inserting the closing lines of the letter, which run thus:

"The Government instructs me to make known to President Juarez, promptly and earnestly, to desire, that in case of the capture of the Prince Maximilian and his supporters, they may receive the humane treatment accorded by civilized nations to prisoners of war."

This paragraph needs no comment. It is a decree in all its transparence and bitterness, without any attempt on the part of Mr. Campbell to embody it in a friendly and courteous manner. Ah! we who have exposed our lives not to see ourselves treated thus by Frenchmen and tyrants, we suffer at reading this.

We have always believed, and now believe it more than ever, that the time is past when foreign Ministers are to be allowed to use such feudal expressions when communicating with our Government, and uttering a threat in the first phrase. We believe that a nation that has fought like ours, has acquired a right to be respected by the powerful, when she herself is a power. We believe that we are now all a packed of greatness and majesty, and that we must reply to others in the same tone in which they address us, and greet with a smile of disdain the threats that last year made us tremble and give explanations.

What! the American Government has been disturbed by the execution of the filibusters captured at San Jacinto? The emotion is rather untimely. We cannot share its tender feelings because the land the filibusters invaded is our own country; because the invaders sacrificed during their piratical war our own brothers; because our dearest interests would be imperilled if they went unpunished.

The Government of the United States, as an unimpassioned looker on, has been disturbed by our massacres and misfortunes. We who are actors in this drama have a different feeling in the matter.

Will our justice stem the current of the sympathy of the Government? The time would be well suited for such a loss. We could dispense with its sympathy as we dispensed with that of the whole world during five years.

They say to us that we must throw open our sanctuary of justice, that a magistrate of the United States may take his seat on the bench, in order that we may lay at his feet our sacred laws. This, that the American magistrate, to whom it matters not what we have endured, may set free in cold blood the usurpers, the filibusters and five hundred traitors to their country, who have drenched the land which gave them birth with gore.

This would not be absurd, but ridiculous, and if our victories have raised us to a higher place in the opinion of the civilized world, one single act of weakness of the kind would make us lose the position we have conquered.

The punishment of the guilty ones is the private and inalienable right of a nation. In matters of internal legislation, no right of action should be conceded to others, whether friends or brothers.

What would the American Government say if we were to demand that Jefferson Davis and his accomplices be decapitated, founding our claims on the fact that secessionists took care to recognize the empire, sympathize with the European interventionists, and made war upon the Mexican republicans? We should like to see the objections of Mr. Seward.

The United States must have had a poor idea of Mexican dignity, to have ever conceived the idea of wielding any influence over our internal politics. Our Government must be just. Its energy in the late struggle is a sufficient guaranty of the energy it will display in this its hour of victory. Educated and free nations, notwithstanding the assurance of Mr. Campbell, salute our triumph with enthusiasm.

The laws of the nation must form an inviolable code, and the governing citizens must make it a rule of conduct to bow to them. The nation, meantime, is confident and hopeful.

IGNACIO M. ALTAMARINO.

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT.

An Unoffending Citizen Bayonetted by the Mellish.

He is Ordered to Eat Grass, but Refuses to Nibble!

From the Knoxville Free Press.]

We have heard the details of another outrage perpetrated at our neighboring town of Loudon, by a so-called captain of the loyal militia. The Kingston East Tennesseean, whose political leanings certainly would not induce it to make a false or prejudicial representation, gives the particulars as follows:

"We have just been informed of a difficulty that took place on Monday last in Loudon between Joseph Alexander, a militia captain, and one of the citizens, which, if true, greatly reflects on the State militia.

It appears that Alexander has recently received a commission in the State Guard, and on Monday last had his men mustered in. Alexander having a grudge against one S. Vires, forsome real or imaginary affront given sometime ago, feeling himself secure with his fifty valiant backers, proceeded to wreak his vengeance upon the unfortunate Vires. The unsuspecting Vires was pounced upon by a file of the new soldiers, and conveyed to the presence of the great Mogul, by whom, after numerous insults offered, Vires was sentenced to eat grass or go hungry. Vires refusing to comply with the captain's command, the guard was directed to inforce the order at the point of the bayonet, whereupon Vires was considerably punctured, but still refused to nibble. Upon the remonstrance of some of the citizens with the valiant commander, Vires was released, and at once got out a State warrant for Alexander. As the Tycoon says he will not allow himself to be arrested, and deputy sheriff Sparks, who holds the warrant, says he must and shall be arrested, we anticipate some interesting war items from that locality.

We understand that this new made commander labors under the hallucination that instead of a militia captain he is one of the seven military district commanders, and, accordingly in General Order, No. 1, he orders that all stores must be closed at nine o'clock, and no one to be on the street without a pass from his headquarters. If we do not mistake Governor Brownlow we conclude that this officious officer will be rewarded for his extraordinary vigilance by being summarily dismissed the service."

We learn by a private letter from Louden that this valiant captain and preserver of the public peace was arrested by the sheriff, and will be tried to-day at Loudon.

An Elegant Theatrical Criticism.

Of Zoe, who is at the New York Theater the Tribune remarks that she "is one of those female performers who appear to imagine that a stout leg is a precious boon, a thing of beauty, a joy forever, and a crown to its possessor. She does not appear as a crown to its possessor. She does not appear as an actress, but as an expositor of calf. What especially offends good taste," continues the Tribune, "is the overweening vanity and gross silliness which prompt a female to thrust her legs upon public observation. There is generally nothing in them but sawdust; and even when they are flesh and blood they are exceedingly uninteresting objects of contemplation." Here remarks Jacobus, the Tribune goes too far.

THURSDAY, : : : : : : : : : JULY. 25, 1867

THE alacrity with which Congress passed the supplemental bill to its several acts of reconstruction, over the irrefragable veto of the President, was like the rapid work of all thieves, who are over anxious to get away from the scene of their crime. No patriot can read the dignified and conclusive State paper which the President sent to the Radical destructives, to arrest them in their mad career, without being grateful to the occupant of the Presidential chair for the firmness and ability displayed, even in the face of a vain hope on his part, and a foregone conclusion on the part of those who are pushing the Government with accelerated pace down the inclined plane provided by themselves, to irretrievable destruction. The argument could only be flanked by the force of numbers, acquired by illegitimate and unconstitutional scheming. The drifting of the Government, under Radical misrule, to the complete overthrow of "all that we have inherited and proved," is precipitate without precedent. The whole theory indulged by the framers of the Government, and so long acquiesced in by their sons, has been upturned. The "one-man power," combatted by the giants of Congress, when CALHOUN, and CLAY, and WEBSTER were in the meridian of their greatness, and which was strengthened as with walls of adamant during the official life of Mr. LINCOLN, has been shown weaker than a reed, which a breath can bend, and rude feet may trample down at will. The assumptions of power, nowhere to be found in the Constitution, and the attempt to give them the force of law, by the usurpations of Congress, cannot be long lived in a nation boasting of the highest and widest spread civilization—unless, indeed, enlightenment and education prepare the way for men to become vassals, or to exercise a despotism over their fellow men. It is plainly perceptible that there is no disposition on the part of the dominant faction, who are swaying the destinies of the "so called" republic, to restore the United States to what they were. It is the greed of power that animates our "rulers." If there were a spark of patriotism to light up the black night of their selfishness, it might inspire a ray of hope. But no; they seem to be actuated by frenzy and to disregard consequences, so they can maintain political power. Every landmark of the Constitution is to be destroyed—every barrier to encroachment be broken down. Even the President whom the Constitution makes the Commander in Chief of army and navy, is stripped of his power, and made subordinate to those who have heretofore been required to be obedient to his will. The old States that came into the confederation before the Constitution was formed, and have been States for a century, are to have their Constitutions examined, to inquire whether they square with the new-fledged Radical notions of what constitutes a republican form of government. The heart turns sick in the mere contemplation of all this rascality. Is there no remedy? Are the people through their arrayal in sectional antagonism, to consent to this overthow of their form of government, and bend the knee to the madmen who are carrying it now with such high hands? There must be a reaction some time. Will not retribution overtake those who seek to ride upon the ruins of their country's freedom? Is their career of wickedness illimitable? There is no bound to their impudence. When such fellows as JOHN A. LOGAN can unblushingly denounce as criminal and worthy of the direst punishment, those who may have been led away by his exhortations and his promised example, in the incipiency of the war, to join and sustain the Southern cause. Should we be astonished at any enormity the fanatical Jacobins are willing to commit? Fanatical Jacobins, do we say? We take back the phrase. They are fiends incarnate, spewed from hell to break down and blot out the finest emanation of statesmanship—and convert "the best government the world ever saw" into the worst. LOGAN, the renegade, is well compared by the National Intelligencer to the infamous BARRERE of the French Revolution—only LOGAN has all the truculence, but not the ability of BARRERE. When such creatures as he, whose early life was devoted to waiting on a horse and jockeying at quarter races, get into public places, where they control all the powers of government, what hope remains for the republic? WILSON says, "Nothing can bring confiscation upon the people of the rebel States but the persistent folly and madness of the masses of their people." STEVENS tells WILSON that he has no right or authority to make any rash promises. The people themselves see that they can do nothing to better their condition, but to endure patiently, take what they can get, and wait until the madness of the hour wears away, and a restoration of a free and equal government based on immutable (?) principles, can be accomplished without imperilling life and property immeasurable to attain it.

OUR people have no liberties to lose, and consequently they have nothing to fear in that respect, from secret political societies; but they have property and life still left, and if they wish to preserve these, they should make war upon an institution in this city known as the Loyal League. This midnight conclave is Know Nothingism revived. If a riot should occur in Memphis on the day of the election, the result may be traced to these conspirators. We understand their harangues are of the most sanguinary character. Each member is bound by horrid oaths, and they are impressed with the belief that they can accomplish all their vile schemes through an organization they regard as invincible. The Loyal League of this city is nothing but a society of "Thugs," "Plug Uglies" and "Blood Tubs." They expect to be supported by one of their order, a violent and unprincipled partizan at the head of a police composed of men who are pledged to the maintenance of their party at all hazards. Our election will be a mere mockery, when conducted and sustained by sworn partizans and armed ruffians. There must be exercised on the day of election a power which will transcend that of the baton and the slungshot, and which shall be free from the interference of weak and wrong-headed city functionaries. No miserable gang of policemen, whose place and pay depend upon the success of their party, should be suffered to drive honest men from the polls or to stuff the ballot box with fraudulent votes. If the Loyal League expect to carry the election by cursing the foreigner, and using beautiful brass knuckles and ponderous slungshots they will be most egregiously mistaken. Such an effort will make the election a carnival of blood. There is nothing of passion in what we say, and, far from using a tone of menace, we would speak a word of warning. The spirit of our fellow citizens is fully aroused, and they will not permit scoundrelly tyranny to control the election. Brazen villainy and ruffianly bullyism must not attempt to push its schemes too far. Conservatives entitled to a vote under the law will most assuredly vote. Residents of other States, boys under seventeen years of age, who have certificates, will not be allowed to vote, notwithstanding they are backed by salaried ruffians and men who would shed blood to perpetuate an ignoble power.

WE greatly regret to learn that General FRANK P. BLAIR is now in Washington City, on important business that imperatively demands his present attention, and he is reluctantly compelled to forego the appointments he had made in West Tennessee, and which he was extremely anxious to fulfill. It will be a source of regret and disappointment to many citizens of this section, who were solicitous to hear the hero-orator—the General, who so gallantly bore him in the battle's front, and sheathed his sword, and assumed the implements of peace when the fight was done. We are not advised of the nature of the business which detains General BLAIR in the Federal city, but it would be a most gratifying change if the President should invite him to a seat in his cabinet, that STANTON might have time to ruminate while enjoying otium cum dignitate. The true friends of the Constitution, everywhere, would more than rejoice over such an event.

LETTER FROM HARDEMAN.

The Way Radicals Explain the Condition in Tennessee.

POCAHONTAS, July 23, 1867.

EDITORS AVALANCHE: We have good tidings of great joy to communicate to you to-day. We who were groping in darkness yesterday, in relation to the workings of the present glorious Government of Tennessee, find ourselves to-day an enlightened people—through the instrumentality of a trio of great men, in the person of General W. J. Smith, and one Captain Hudson, of your city, and one G. A. Woodson, who aspires to Legislative honors from Hardeman. They were dropped among us from the train yesterday, like a thunderbolt from a cloud, unexpected, unsolicited, and unobserved. True, the little Brigadier said he had chronicled the advent of their coming in the Memphis Post, some days ago. But fortunately for the political morals of our people, that paper never finds its way among us (We wish we could say as much for the Press and Times). So you will see we were taken wholly by surprise.

But we had a protracted Babtist meeting going on, with a small congregation in attendance, and soon arrangements were made; through the courtesy of the ministers, to suspend the worship of God and devote the sacred temple to the worship of Brownlow for three mortal hours. The aforesaid missionaries then proceeded to the work assigned them in the following order, namely: The redoubtable Esquire Woodson mounted the sacred stand first, and burst forth in a strain of such loud and impassioned eloquence that we were made verily to believe that he was the man on whom the mantle of Patrick Henry had fallen. But in about two minutes, while endeavoring to use some word beyond the capacity of his throat, he got choaked and collapsed by introducing the Hon. General W. J. Smith. This we regarded as a piece of surplusage, for we had the misfortune to know the man (minus the honorable part) for low these many years.

He then introduced himself as the representative of the Honorable David Nunn, and entered at once into a rambling and scattering abuse of John W. Leftwich and Emerson Etheridge, and their positions, and had the kindness to inform us that they were the most inconsistent men now living, except Andy Johnson. While we had been ignorant enough to believe that they were only excelled in their consistency by Andy Johnson, and in this connection we cannot very long commit the indiscretion of thinking that if he was the representative of Mr. Nunn, proper that he should be along with Mr. Leftwich at his appointments where he is addressing large crowds every day, and where Mr. Nunn has been invited to attend and discuss the great questions at issue fairly, and not be skulking out into dark corners where he knew Mr. Leftwich would not be present to answer him. But we suppressed the thought, and was not guilty of indiscretion.

He next brought in review before us one Mat. C. Gallaway, one Mr. Hamilton, and one Albert Pike, and admonished us that they were very bad, rebellious, traitorous sort of men, and that they were supporting Etheridge and Leftwich, and consequently they were rebellious, traitorous, bad men.

We came near committing the indiscretion again of wondering how it was that if any of those horse thieves that infest the country should happen to vote for the little General, if that would make him a horse thief; but we suppressed the wonder, and were not guilty of the indiscretion.

He next had the kindness to inform us that the secession leaders could get no offices in the old Government, and that was the reason they seceded and broke up the government, and brought on us all the troubles, past and present. From Jefferson Davis & Co. could get no offices, and we had been actually silly and unkind enough to abuse them because we believed they left official positions in the old Government to join in rebellion, when we thought they ought to have held on; and we might have known no better to this good day if the brilliant Brigadier had not come among us.

He then had the glorious consolation to inform us that Hugh L. White, General Jackson, John Bell and Cave Johnson used to arm free negroes into groceries, soliciting their votes, and why should we not follow their example? And that Cave Johnson actually emancipated fifteen negro fellows and armed them to the polls, and by that means secured his election to Congress, and that the said Hon. H. R. D., Esq., who lived in Johnson's district at the time of the close contest between him and General Cheatham, was ignorant to know nothing of this piece of history.

He then wound up by telling the old, stale and threadbare story of Bill Jenks and the temperance lecturer, but made himself the hero, as the special friend and sequaintance of Bill.

The last, though not least, came the redoubtable Captain Hudson. He had the goodness to inform us that Mr. Lincoln appointed a Military Governor in Tennessee, and that said Military Governor went on to reconstruct and organize the State Government, and that everything had worked like a charm, and in the next breath informed us that Andy Johnson had had the unconstitutional audacity to appoint Military Governors in other Southern States, and had played the d—l generally. Oh, consistency, we know you by your voice. And now, forgetting himself that there were no negroes present, he informed we white denizens that the Conservative party was seeking power to fasten slavery on the negroes again. Here he collapsed, and the feast of reason ceased.

But, my dear sir, to be serious, it was a bloodless victory, achieved by a trio of laureliess heroes.
Yours respectfully, FORKS.

NEW YORK, July 24.

Dr. Harris' weekly report of mortality for the past week shows one hundred and fifty-three deaths less than the average of the corresponding week for six years past.

A trotting match for $1,200—two mile heats—came off on the Fashion Course yesterday between Lady Buford, Richmond and Stonewall Jackson. First and third heats, and race won by General Butler. Time: 4:59, 5:05 and 5:08.

The steamer Columbia brings Havana advices to the 20th.

The Cuban Treasury is in bad condition. No salaries for June yet paid.

It is reported that General Prim was no stranger to the recent outbreak in Porti Rico. The cry of the revolters was, "Viva General Prim, viva la Republica."

The Cuban Government is taking measures which indicate they fear some movement of a revolutionary nature.

The yellow fever at Havana is still quite bad, though not quite so malignant.

Advices from St. Thomas says it is generally believed that the United States will succeed in acquiring the island for a coaling station.

A coal mine has been discovered in San Christobel, St. Domingo.

The Southern settlers in British Honduras have selected two places for residences, to be called Post Austin and Buena Vista. Great inducements are offered to emigrants.

Failures in Jamaica are increasing, and mercantile affairs cheerless.

Advices from Columbia to the 28th of June say that General Lopez has raised some forces and taken the field against President Accosta, who is meeting with much opposition.

An attempt was made to assassinate Mosqueras, but failed. He was carried to the observatory building for safety.

The Assembly of the State of Cacca has disowned Accosta's authority, and threatened to withdraw from the Union. Troops are being collected to enforce the will of the people.

The blockade of South Matcha has been declared illegal by the United States, and the people of Carthagena were arming with alacracity in consequence.

The foreign consuls have also declared the blockade illegal.

The steamer Columbia had captured a ship load of arms and ammunition for the Government of Magdina, and taken it to Carthagena.

General Lopez, with four hundred men, took the Banco Square by storm on the 28th. It was guarded by only seventy men. A few were killed during the fight.

Advices from Mexico to the 13th say that Maximilian's late Chamberlain was arrested; also Sealas, Andreaido, Arristo, Father Fisher and others. General Vidoval and Colonel Redone are reported shot. O'Haron was found in a wooden box, and lynched by the mob.

The merchants of Mexico tendered a spontaneous loan of half a million to General Diaz.

Candidates for election are published: For President, Juarez; for Judge of the Supreme Court, Vegada.

The bodies of Maximilian, Miramon and Mejia were embalmed.

A special to the Post says the ex-rebel Commissioner for the exchange of prisoners of war publishes a letter in the National Intelligencer, in which he says that in 1864 the rebel authorities voluntarily proposed to deliver 15,000 sick and wounded soldiers without requiring any equivalent. He offers to prove this by the evidence of Union officers.

Some correspondent says that at a Democratic meeting in Baltimore last night, one member of the Maryland Constitutional Convention appealed to his hearers to assert the doctrine of State Rights, and carry back the General Government to its real intent as understood by the framers of the Constitution. The sovereignty of Maryland, he said, must not be given up save at the point of the bayonet.

Mrs. Surratt's Innocence.

The letter of our correspondent, says the New York Express, revives an important statement on the trial of Mrs. Surratt, which, as he states, appeared in this city some two or three thousand months since, and which was, at the time, laughed at and denied. The particulars of the case are now thus stated, and with good authority:

After her counsel had concluded his argument in Mrs. Surratt's behalf, the Judge Advocate General (Mr. Holt) approached him and said, "Although you and I may differ as to Mrs. Surratt's innocence, I wish to say that your effort has made a decided impression upon the court." When it came to make up its findings, six of the members—Generals Hunter, Ekin, Kauts, Foster, Tompkins and Clendenin—were opposed to the death sentence. The Assistant Judge Advocate, Hon. John A. Bingham, argued the case in the absence of her counsel, and, to use General Hancock's own expression, "There was plenty of discussion on the subject." Books and papers and authorities were sent for, and finally the court passed the sentence. But before leaving the table a round which they were seated, this paper, (a recommendation for a commutation of the sentence) was drawn up and signed by the generals named. The authority for this statement is most reliable.

The Hebrew Educational Institute

WILL be open on September 1 for the Fall and Winter sessions, at their new and commodious building, 303 Third Street, between Monroe & Madison.

Ample arrangements are being made for a full and competent Faculty.
Circulars will be issued in due time, giving particulars.

A Card.

WE will at once rebuild our warehouse, and will have it completed by the 15th of September, but by the first day of that month we will be ready to receive goods on store.

The stands will be divided into fire proof compartments by brick walls, and covered with tin. Those who have patronized us for the last two seasons, and those who may have proposed to do so the approaching one, may rest assured we will be ready for them.

We design establishing a Cotton Compress in connection with our Warehouse, upon an adjacent lot, which will be ready by the 1st of October or so over. The propinity of our establishment to the river renders the handling of cotton so convenient that we can transfer cotton for shipment by river free of dray age. The advantage of the position is equal to one drayage on all cotton sent to compress apart from other warehouse, while on all cotton in our warehouse for compressment there can be two drayages saved, since it would be as easy for us to transfer it from our shed to the Compress as to turn it out in the ordinary way for transfer by drays.

The public are now hereby warned not to buy or trade for any of said notes, the consideration for said ten thousand dollar note having failed, and the said two notes for five thousand dollars each having been fraudulently obtained by the said Thomas Barrett.

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS' BENEFIT.—The entertainment at the Memphis Club Hall last Tuesday night was a perfect success. The ladies and gentlemen were enthusiastically applauded and severally encored. Miss DeHage's fantasia, "La Sonnambula," was an excellent performance. The song, "Ah, so Pure," by Miss Tilly Smith, was very sweetly sung, and encored. The duet, by Miss Stella Knox and J. H. Mehoney, was well rendered, and encored. "The Two Cousins," by Misses Lue Fussell and Plummer; the flute solo, by Mr. H. T. Tomlinson; "La Dame Blanche," by Miss Katy Williams, and the comic song, "Paddy's the Boy," by Mr. T. A. Ryan, were far superior to the performances of most amateurs. Altogether, the entertainment was a most splendid one, and would bear repetition.

CRIMINAL COURT.—The case of S. A. Parrish, indictment for larceny, occupied the attention of the Court on yesterday. The evidence against the prisoner would probably come within the range of circumstantial evidence, and as several respectable parties testified as to his good character before being charged with this crime, the presumption of guilt was removed and the jury properly returned a verdict of not guilty. Thomas Eldridge, Esq., conducted the defense. The prisoner at the announcement of the verdict gave evident symptoms of delight, and rising from his seat, waved his hat and bowed smilingly to everybody, not forgetting even a disappointed General Wallace, and then disappeared suddenly from the court room.

The investigation of the Fred. Rosser case was then resumed. Medical witnesses were introduced by the defense, and an elaborate, hypothetical case as to insanity was read to them. Some discussion arose between counsel as to its form, which was closed by Judge Hunter, who continued the case to this evening for the purpose of having counsel agree as to a stated case, if possible; if not, then two hypothetical cases could be presented to medical men. His Honor ruled that it would be required of the defense to make out a case of some kind of his insanity known to medical science, or the testimony would be ruled out.

The cases for trial to-day will be taken from the calendar for the week.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.—On Tuesday morning, between one and two o'clock, as B. W. Curtis, a route agent upon the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad, was superintending the transfer of the mail from the train to the Mississippi Central road, at Grenada, he was assaulted by the conductor of the latter train and ordered from the platform. On its refusing to go, was struck a violent blow in the face by the conductor. Recovering himself, he drew a pistol and shot his opponent in the shoulder. Curtis at once delivered himself into the hands of the United States officers who were at the depot, and is now in their charge. General Ord was telegraphed at Vicksburg, in relation to the matter, and the question whether he will be tried by the civil or military authorities is probably decided on this. Mr. Curtis is well known in this city, where he has numerous friends, to whom he endeared himself by his strict attention to business, amiable deportment, and uniform courtesy. We shall not be surprised, but be truly gratified, to hear of his acquittal from all blame. The wound of the conductor may prove serious, as it is in the shoulder near the neck. We have not heard what provocation, if any, induced him to strike Curtis. The affair is unfortunate, as it disables two persons from discharging their respective duties, which, doubtless, they would willingly exchange for their present situation.

CORRECTION.—We desired to compliment Colonel Cameron's impromptu speech on the occasion of the presentation to Mr. Speed, on Tuesday evening, but the types went wrong, and made us say Colonel Coleman. The former gentleman had known Mr. Speed from boyhood; knew his father as a citizen of Chicago, and was admirably qualified to make the tasteful and classical speech he did, full of earnest, eloquent and patriotic sentiment. He was heard with pleased attention, and we have never listened to a few remarks, on such an occasion, more eloquently thrown together, or expressed in more chaste language. It was the spontaneous offering of true friendship and respect, and touched a responsive chord in every heart. We desire, therefore, to say as much for Colonel Cameron, and trust that the "Colonel Coleman" of the article, who is a myth to us, will pardon us for "saddling the right horse."

Our stock of dress goods is very large, and must be closed out regardless of cost or value. Give us a call and you will satisfy yourself, at Lindauer & Pollock's, 39 Main street. tf

Many complaints are made of the management of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, and the constant discriminations made to turn trade and travel away from Memphis.

It is reported that a conductor on the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad was shot, on Tuesday, by a mail agent named B. W. Curtis, with whom he had a difficulty at Canton.

An Inquest was held on Tuesday upon the body of Andrew Davidson, a colored man, who has been suffering for some time with dropsy. He died on Monday, from heat and exposure.

Persons cannot be too careful at this season relative to their diet. They should avoid unripe or stale vegetables or fruits. Ripe fruits are wholesome. If the use of vegetables brings on a diarrhea, eat salt meat at one or two meals.

W. Z. Mitchell, Esq., Superintendent of the common schools of Memphis, has opened a very neat store, adjoining the AVALANCHE office, for the sale of school and standard books, late papers and stationery.

The Horn Lake picnic to-day will be one of the most pleasant festivals of the season. The beauty and chivalry of Mississippi will doubtless be well represented at it.

Cora, a very handsome but dissolute yellow girl, who was formerly seen much about Jefferson street saloons, took laudanum last evening, to thus put an end to her life. She has recently been living near the corner of Union and DeSoto streets. At a late hour last night she was vomiting freely, with a fair chance to get well.

Yesterday was perhaps the warmest day of the season thus far, as the thermometer stood at 95° in the shade. It is worthy of note that under the influence of this hot, dry weather there are very few new cases of the congestive disease that earlier in the season is every year so fatal.

A lawyer and a doctor had an altercation near the corner of Main and Jefferson streets yesterday. The lawyer made some offensive remark, but the doctor supposed he was jesting, and made no reply. The lawyer made a blow at the doctor, and the doctor unprofessionally laid him out with a cane.

The announcement that certain parties here are making arrangements for settling contiguous to Memphis a suburban Hollander colony has caused such sensation that now, daily numerous letters of inquiry are received from Hollanders and others, wishing to ascertain upon what terms they can procure homes at this new settlement, which is to be called Haarlem.

When City Engineer Foster entered his present office there was about $140,000 a year spent under his direction. Now the annual expenditures will amount to $1,600,000. The grades of the streets are permanently fixed, and all improvements made to last.

John McDonald and two other fellows, after enjoying themselves in a Poplar street saloon yesterday refused to pay. A quarrel ensued and they shot Henry Windle, the barkeeper. McDonald, who lists from St. Louis, is locked up.

Dr. W. D. Lyles, president of the Mississippi Educational, etc., Aid Society, having recently visited our city, has established an agency here, and has appointed Leon Trousdale as agent. In a few days the city press will furnish a prospectus of the contemplated operations of this institution.

Division No. 60 of the Sons of Temperance in the State of Tennessee, is announced by the Grand Division as the banner Division of the State. It has now three hundred members on its roll. Formerly Division No. 30, of Nashville, was considered the banner Division, and its members have been quite cut down by the award to No. 60, of which our clever friend Hugh Fox is Worthy Patriarch.

The grand Conservative barbecue at Somerville, on next Saturday, July 27, will have a large attendance. To accommodate those who wish to go to it from this city, the cars will leave here by the Memphis and Charleston railroad at six and ten o'clock a.m., and returning, leave Somerville at eight and o'clock p.m. It will be a real old fashioned barbecue, with music, speaking and other attracting features.

From the bayou, near Adams street, southeastwardly to the Charleston depot, is a wide space belonging to the city. In its present condition it is unsightly, but President Tate, of the Memphis and Charleston railroad company, proposes, if a long, narrow park is laid out there, and a street made on each side, he will put trees and shrubs in the park, and otherwise beautify it. His proposition has been referred to the Improvement Committee, with power to act.

Julius Behr had gone security for some one who failed to pay a debt. William Jericho attempted to levy on Behr's property without trying to make the debt out of the principal, who is solvent. A difficulty ensued, and Jericho drew a pistol. For this he was yesterday fined fifteen dollars. He had Behr arrested for resisting him, but Behr claimed that he was only specially deputized, and was not an officer. The plea was sustained; Behr was discharged and Jericho mulcted in five dollars more costs.

The County Commissioners who are to pay Dumars twenty four hundred dollars a year, or within one hundred dollars of as much as the Commissioners themselves get, and only expect him to see that the court rooms are swept and dusted and the spittoons cleaned, not long since objected to paying a black man twelve dollars a month for actually doing all that sort of work for the Municipal Court room.

A gentleman of some standing died during the war. His widow was arrested for attempting to take supplies through the Federal army lines, and was locked up in the Irving Block until she died. Their little daughter, now five years of age, a bright and pretty child, is now without a home or protector, as its few relations have all been reduced to extreme poverty by the war. It is hoped that some good family will adopt this little waif and give to it a home.

The director of burials is waiting for business, but in a good many cases he is not called on to direct, but simply to indorse the bills of the undertakers "all right." Tala he will decline to do if his office is to be of the slightest use. He cannot interfere with "the Organ," nor can he with the Commissioners, who have, for some reason, reserved to themselves the right to direct burials; but in all other cases he can refuse to bury at the public expense persons who are not paupers.

Little General Smith has been making a speech at Oakland. He told the colored people how much he was their friend, and how much he wanted to do for them. He claimed to be the strongest kind of a Radical, and a bright, intelligent negro spoke up and said if that was the case, he (the black) would have nothing to do with that party, especially if it put Smith forward as its leading man. Smith wanted to know why he said so, and the black replied that during the war Smith had stolen a horse and sixty dollars from him. That he thought was enough. Smith indignantly denied the charge, but the black called up three other negroes, who knew of the case and they confirmed what the black had charged. Smith didn't make many votes that day.

A short time ago an Italian named Louis Botto, who kept a saloon and confectionary and fruit stand on the corner of Main and Poplar streets, determined to pay a visit to his native land. When he got to Cincinnati he indulged somewhat in drink with countrymen whom he met, but still seemed able to take care of himself. He got on the cars to go to Pittsburg, but on the cars was a gang of thieves who gave him chloroform and then robbed him of five hundred dollars, a gold watch, and even his hat and a part of his clothing. When the conductor noticed him he seemed under the influence of liquor, but was soon found to be deranged. He was taken to a hospital, but died in a few days. His friends ordered his body sent here for interment, and yesterday it arrived.

The United States soldiers to be collected here on election day from Paducah, Columbus, Union City and Hazelnut, will comprise a full regiment. The whole will be under the command of Brevet Lieutenant Colonel E. F. Townsend, of the Twenty-fifth United States infantry. They will be stationed on the bluff, ready to repair promptly, at the call of the Mayor, to any point to suppress a riot. They will take no part in the election, and will not make prisoners, or at least if they do, will hand them over at once to the civil authorities. The soldiers are not to approach the polls, or in any way interfere with the election unless to put down riotous conduct. They are simply to aid the civil authorities.

There was a very lively, spirited, and well attended Conservative meeting in the Criminal Court room last night. It was a meeting of delegates from the different Wards called together to make arrangements for a grand mass meeting next week. Colonel Mayers made a fine speech. Alderman Smith and Mr. Welsh, a talented member of the bar, made also good speeches. A Committee of three from each Ward was appointed to collect funds preliminary to carrying out the purpose of the meeting. The Committee selected was composed of the following persons:

First Ward, I T Cartwright, Robt Goode, John C Powers; Second Ward, John Cochran, J J Berlin, W R Bostick; Third Ward, P Duffey, Sam Herman, A Delap; Fourth Ward, H J Lynn, J W Megibben, Sam F Walker; Fifth Ward, Martin Cohen, Thomas J O'Donnell, J P Tobin; Sixth Ward, Henry Chiles, Reiley & Reidy; Seventh Ward, Thomas O Smith, Henry T Green, W R Archer; Eighth Ward, John C Creighton, D R Grace, W W Patton; Chelsea, John Martin, W L Saffarans.

The members of the committee will make collections and report to a meeting on Friday night.

This spirited movement is mainly due to Captain Tobin's energy and clear sighted sagacity.

DON'T CROWD THINGS.—The Southern Asylum, through agencies now rapidly established throughout the United States, will speedily dispose of vast amounts of property. Go buy your tickets at once, and win either a magnificent city property or a farm on a Memphis rail way.

M. Kraus & Co.'s (No. 213 Main street) damaged stock of dry goods must be sold within the next ten days.

A FEW QUERIES ABOUT RYDER.

Was Every Radical Candidate a Secessionist?

The queries in reference to Hamilton, the Radical candidate for the Legislature, have not been answered.

To refute the specific allegations against Eaton, an old testimonial that he was once a respectable school superintendent in Toledo is paraded again and again, but not a word is said about the direct, positive charges of his misconduct here. Is there in this course a consciousness of guilt?

Specific charges of corruption have been again and again directly made against little W. J. Smith and F. S. Richards. Facts proving them have been again and again referred to, but neither Smith nor Richards makes a word of reply. Is this course a result of conscious guilt and a hope that many colored people will not hear the charges?

If the Radical party had enough honesty to be ashamed of such candidates, it would demand some denial, some excuse, from the accused.

Radicals seeking to excite the prejudices of ignorant colored people claim that they can't vote for any man who was a rebel in arms, or was a slaveholder, and then without a blush hurrah for candidates who were rebels while they thought it would pay to be on the Confederate side, and afterwards bitter persecutors of the men whom they inveigled into rebellion.

Didn't little General Smith have rebel flags stuck up at his house, and declare how he would fight Federals, and then turn round and start fifteen wagon loads of stuff that his superior Federal officer forced him to abandon?

Didn't Hamilton command a rebel war steamer, "Thirty-fifth Parallel," and plunder Unior men with as much zeal as he has since shown for the loyal side?

Didn't Richards aid the sale transportation of rebel war stores and then become bitterly loyal?

Was'nt Ryder drill master or some other official of Roger's rebel company, that was Company I of Colonel Douglass' rebel regiment? Didn't he try to get up a meeting so as to have himself made Captain, in place of Hal. Rogers? Did'nt he persevere in that attempt to get up a meeting until Captain Rogers threatened to have him arrested if he did not stop? Did'nt he subsequently detail men to help Hamilton, Captain of Thirty-fifth Parallel seize the property of citizens who are now suing or going to sue in the United States Courts for its value, which was immense?

There is no honorable, intelligent Union man who will say that these men have evinced as much principle as the humblest soldier in either the Union or Confederate army. There is no party that should not be ashamed to put such men forward as its best men.

A CORRESPONDENT'S OPINION OF EATON.

The Radical Nominee for State Superintendent of Common Schools.

EDITORS AVALANCHE: The late Superintendent of Freedmen in this valley, General John Eaton, jr., etc., etc., from early in the fall of 1862, until he was deposed by the appointment of General O. O. Howard to the head of the Freedmen's Bureau, worked a greater number of slaves, under the color of freedmen, than all she combined planters of Tennessee. Every freedman under his control, and that of his subordinates, male or female, soldier or citizen, were fed by Government and clothed through Northern charity. They labored hard by day, and often by night, in woodyards, on plantations, at saw mills and other various kinds of labor, and we have never seen, nor do we ever expect to, even the semblance of a financial report where a single dollar of the hard earned money accumulated by such labor, and paid over to the Department, has ever been accounted for by the General Superintendent or any of his satellites. We shall not charge the sale of the colored orphans formerly on President's Island, as well as some fifteen boxes of donated goods to the care and disposition of his lordship. We shall reserve that and many other little trifles for the future. If there ever were wolves in sheep's clothing during the career of General Eaton as Superintendent of said Freedmen, and his wives agents, with some honorable exceptions, they were the wolves. God help the freedmen from ever again being placed under such taskmasters as those above referred to. There still may be a very far distant glimmering hope of Heaven for some of the general officers in the late Freedmen's Department; but that hope, if any, no doubt is founded entirely upon the ground that Christ, who was executed upon the cross between two thieves, took one of them to Paradise with Him because he sought repentance in the last hour of his earthly existence. ALPHA.

Receipts of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad for Wednesday, July 25.

J. R. CHRISTIAN & Co.—We publish "a card" from these gentlemen, severe losers by the recent disastrous fire at the Navy Yard, to which we desire to direct attention. In addition to what they represent in their "card," we may say their location is where the transfer of freights, both ways, over the Memphis and Little Rock railroad, is naturally indicated, and it is in contemplation to create wharf facilities at the foot of Market street, looking to that end. Their location is also at the terminus of the Memphis and Ohio railroad, which, as soon as it shall regain possession of its buildings and of its track in the Navy Yard, it is expected will again run its freight trains, as formerly, to this point. The proximity of Messrs. Christian & Co. to the terminus of this road and the river, by which last, as we are informed, over two-thirds of the cotton shipped North from this port, during the past season, was sent, gives them a great advantage, to be realized when they shall have built themselves up again, which their numerous friends will be gratified to learn will not be long delayed. They will add many improvements to their former facilities, which should secure for them an extensive patronage.

RIVER NEWS.

DAILY AVALANCHE OFFICE,
THURSDAY, July 25, 1867.

BUSINESS—WEATHER—RIVERS.

Yesterday was the warmest day of the season, the thermometer ranging from 90° to 92° in the shade. The river is declining steadily, and will soon be down to its usual summer stage. At St. Louis the river is falling, with a good stage to Cairo. The Ohio is receding steadily, with three and a half feet in the canal, and five and a half feet on the bars in the lower Ohio. White river is falling, with nine feet to Augusta. The Arkansas is declining, with five feet to Little Rock.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Warm weather; dull business; but one boat receiving at the landing—the Gleaner, for Arkansas river.

The Mackerel Brigade, were duly on hand, two thousand strong, to greet the arrival of their great commander, whose coming on the Belle St. Louis had been anticipated, through the agency of the telegraph. The reception was grand and imposing in the extreme, every mackerel gaily bedecked with his badge of red flannel. After speeches of welcome and grateful appreciation, the newly returned commander, looking as proud as a Roman conqueror, undergoing a triumph, was conveyed in an open barouche, drawn by eight snow-white horses, to the elegant lodgings prepared for him. Finding it impossible, without too much fatigue, to bow to the wild acclaim of the enthusiastic mackerels, he was promptly aided by his two fellow co's of the news agency, and the spectacle was delightful, as they sat there, their heads inclining with the regularity of three porcelain mandarins moved by machinery. We drew the curtain from and hid followed. The company will be organized for active operations this morning. The music engaged for the occasion was the imitation of the calliope on the paleaconcion, published or "howled" by the celebrated African champion.

Mr. Donahue, of the firm of Vincent and Donahue, left last evening on a northern pleasure tour, during the "heated term." He availed himself of the rapid and agreeable facilities of the Memphis and Ohio railroad. Bright be his smiles, happy his hours, and his shadow be as large as it ought to be.

The Belle St. Louis arrived from St. Louis last evening with a good trip. She is the regular Thursday Cairo and St Louis packet, and returns to St. Louis to-day at five p.m. Captain Zeigler commands and Billy Stickner is the clerk in the office.

The Mary Swan, Captain Heiskell, arrived from Vicksburg last night. She is receiving at the wharf for Cairo and Evansville, and will leave to-day at five p.m.

The Lady, Captain Ward, is the regular Friday Helena and Moon Lake packet.

The Rubicon from Vicksburg for St. Louis passed up last night.

The Darling will be at the wharf this morning from Cincinnati. She returns to Cincinnati on Saturday at five p.m.

The Dan Able, Captain King, is receiving for the Arkansas river and way points, and will leave on Friday at 5 p.m.

The fine steamer, the Nick Longworth, Captain Irwin, will leave the City wharf-boat to-day at five p.m. for New Orleans.

The John S. McCune, Captain Duffer, is posted for White river on Saturday at five p.m.

Captain Isaac Canfield, in former days well known as builder and commander of the large and magnificent steamer Charles Belcher, died at his residence, near Bunker Hill, Illinois, on Saturday, last. Captain C. was universally esteemed and respected by those who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

The St. Louis Democrat, of Tuesday, has the following:

River falling rapidly here. A sudden an unexpected freshet has taken place in the upper Mississippi, but it will not likely be felt here beyond the amount of thirty or forty inches. The Illinois has become so low that the Peoria packet has withdrawn for a lighter boat to take her place, and two others will probably be withdrawn this week, for lighter boats to enter. The Missouri as and below Benton is about bank full, and falling rapidly. Weather hot. Business fair. Last week's rates to New Orleans were reaffirmed at the meeting yesterday of the Boatmens' Association. The Phil. Sheridan has gone on another raid, so saith Captain Hutchinson in a telegraphic dispatch to his agent in this city. We suppose from that that the Phil. has quit the Dubuque trade. The Commonwealth came up from the docks yesterday in the most complete order.

The Cincinnati Enquirer of the 23d has the following:

Colonel Bob Gibson, of the Steamboat agency firm of Larry Harmstad & Co., Memphis, arrived here yesterday morning, and will remain in the city several days. The Silver Spray has abandoned her trip to New Orleans for the present, and left the wharf for Licking yesterday to undergo renovation. Frank Oakes' new steamer will be launched some time next week.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—It is authoritatively announced that the statement that President Johnson intends removing Sheridan is unfounded.

The New York Tribune says that the President's last veto was not presented to secretary Stanton for his opinion, consequently he did not have an opportunity to approve or disapprove the document before its presentation to Congress.

The President has not yet named the officers who are to form part of the commission on locating the Indians. Generals Sherman, Hancock and Auger are suggested by some, because these officers are already on duty in the West, and are familiar with the subject, and the facts whereupon the commission is to act, but the President will probably select three Brigadier Generals who had no part in the conduct of military movements against the Indians, and thus enable Generals Sherman, Hancock and Auger to give testimony before the commission.

Walrussia has been added to Washington Territory, and General Rousseau has been assigned to the command.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The meeting of the Radical Republican General Convention last evening nominated General Grant for the next Presidency, subject to the decision of the Republican National Convention.

OFFICE CITY ENGINEER, MEMPHIS, July 23, 1867.

To the Honorable Board of Mayor and Aldermen of the city of Memphis:

GENTLEMEN—Colonel Sam. Tate has suggested the propriety of occupying a portion of the grounds between the Memphis and Charleston railroad depot and what was formerly known as the Pigeon Roost road, for a public park. He proposes to retain fifty feet in adjusting the depot for the use of the railroad company and for a public carriage way, and has requested me to give the lines and grade for the curbing, in order to enable him to proceed at once with their paving.

Colonel Tate proposes to furnish to the city, free of charge, all the shade trees required for the park.

If the cost of fencing and laying out the grounds will not exceed the cost of paving the same, I would respectfully recommend the adoption of the plan proposed, and suggest that the subject be referred to the appropriate committee.

Very respect fully,

FRANCIS FOSTER,
City Engineer.

Read, received and referred to Improvement Committee.

By Alderman Schilling:

Resolved, etc., That the communication of the Civil Engineer with reference to the proposed park be referred to the Improvement Committee with power to act.

Adopted.

And the Board adjourned.

City Register.

Fashions for August.

From Demorest's Magazine:

"I never noticed ladies' fashions so much as I have done lately," said a gentleman the other day, "and it really seems to me that they never were so many pretty things, or looked so charming and picturesque as they do now."

Was not that speech worth the acknowledgment of a bow? Well, dear lady readers, all of whom we know are charming, and wear "pretty things," we made one in your behalf, and felt delighted to let you know that your efforts (abuse of chignons and crinoline to the contrary notwithstanding) are appreciated.

Candidly, we think the gentlemen correct mainly in the assertion. The present style of dress, while simple and convenient, is at the same time varied, full of quaintness, if one may be allowed the expression, and above all picturesque. The trained or short gored skirts, the high heeled boots, the loose, pointed jackets, the massed hair, crowned with the little round hat or bonnet, have the merit of novelty to the present generation, and afford opportunities which striking, stylish women make the most of.

The most noticeable fault is in overtrimming, or in using too many colors; but this is inevitable in a community of tastes, and, at any rate, is less objectionable in light summer goods than in thick, heavy ones.

Among the desirable new goods brought out this season are white broche muslins. They consist of muslins enriched with a raised broche figure, white instead of colored, and make really beautiful and useful dresses, as they wash and "do up," in laundry parlance, with an appearance of newness which is unusual in fine muslin. The price is somewhat high, as it always is for novelties, but the material is very wide (one yard and a quarter,) and only a small quantity is required for a dress.

A washing dress for travelling, and country, riding and walking wear, is a great desideratum with many ladies for this month, which is usually hot and dusty; and we are glad to be able to mention sublecached linen as an excellent material to be used for this purpose. A very neat suit can be made up perfectly plain; but if trimming is required, a black and white washing plaid will be found the most suitable.

Fine chene mohair, in black and white, is another very fashionable material for traveling dresses; it must be a pure article, or the color will not stand; but of good quality it is very fine, does not wrinkle easily, and cleans beautifully at the end of the season. Narrow cross cut bands of black silk form a suitable trimming, stitched on with white.

Satin striped chambery gauze has largely taken the place of grenadine, and is preferred on account of retaining its stiffness, even when exposed to moisture or damp air. They are pretty trimmed with loops of satin ribbon, or with narrow cross-cut bands of satin in the contrasting color.

White bodies are as fashionable as ever, and have the advantage of always being fresh and charming. We have mentioned the white broche muslins, which trim very appropriately with cluny lace; but there are the trimmed organdies and swiss, which are more suitable for evening wear, and the still lighter tulles, always pretty and always in vogue.

Over these are worn peplum skirts, trimmed with lace, or express sashes, which form a bodice, and are knotted low upon the skirt behind.

New and costly poplin skirts, worn over rich silk and satin dresses, and still more effectively over the lightest tulle, consist of feather tips, crimson and gold, white or mottled, like the peacock. They are very costly, and create much the sort of sensation when they are seen that would be excited by the appearance of a wild Indian in his original costume.

The new silks preparing for fall are richly brocaded in new and striking designs, duplicated mainly from patterns sent to the Paris Exposition. The more eccentric ones represent feathers, flashes of lightning, or flame-colored darts upon a black ground, birds, animals and the like. We prefer, however, the life-like transfer of a bunch of white daisies, loosely knotted upon a green ground, sprays of lillies of the valley thrown upon a bright blue ground, or long, slender stems, wonderfully shaded in all the new colors, in buds of crimson and gold, from stems twisted of "mermaid" green and "Bismarck" brown.

A most gorgeous pattern—there is no other word that will express it—represents a bed of tulips; broche in the most brilliant colors, upon a black ground. Not one woman in a thousand could wear such a dress; and if the rage continues and grows for large figures, it will become a matter of serious inquiry what the little women are to do.
